Bone, to Sidney Myers, head of the accounting department of The Republican. The parlors of the First M. E. church were loaned for the occasion, and members of the club exemplified their spirit of co-operation and service by arranging the supper.

The outstanding feature of the meeting was the adoption of resolutions presented by Mrs. Con Cronin as chairman of the executive committee, in which Mrs. Mag Bell Craig, president-elect, was named as delegate to the national federation to be held in July and was taking care of the business part of the sending of the delegate to Cleveland suggested. Proper disposal of the building fund was recommended, and the appointment followed of a committee composed of Miss Alice Birdsell, Mrs. Ernest Hall and Mrs. R. N. Dates will be announced later for these affairs.

PULL LASHES FOR BEAUTY In the Bakongo country of Africa there are many strange sights to be seen, especially in the tiny stockaded towns along the Congo river, and the most amusing sight are those dictated by Bakongo fashions. It is common to see one woman pulling out another woman's eyelashes, not in anger, but for beauty's sake, and the patient, truly patient, lying silent and dry-eyed under the painful treatment.

But fashion among the men is equally as strange. They are inveterate smokers, and devote a large part of their tillable ground to the growth of tobacco, and much of their time to consuming it. The most fashionable method of smoking is to use a pipe, and the longer the pipe is, the more fashionable, the Bakongo swell is considered.

A four-foot pipe is not at all uncommon, and some of the men have slaves whose one duty is to carry the pipe and to light it when their master wishes to smoke.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PENNY SAVED One of the many clever ways in which savings are effected by big automobile companies was illustrated by a story told the other day by a manufacturer of parts used in quantities in the making of a widely known cheap car.

He received instructions to pack all shipments in cases made of boards of a certain length and width and with screw holes a specified distance apart. He grumbled a good deal at this, but since the order came from his largest customer he said nothing and complied with instructions. However, when he next met an executive of the motor car company he asked him the reason for the change in packing.

"Oh," was the reply, "there is no use in wasting good lumber and, now that you make the boards the right size, we just dip them in black paint and use them for the floors of the cars."—Wall Street Journal.

FORCE OF HABIT "Mrs. Blank is a great bargain hunter, isn't she?" "Yes, she even picked out a husband whose reputation was slightly damaged."—Boston Transcript.

Donofrio's Ice Cream in the Diet

No. 5—Mineral Foods

The human body demands a certain supply of minerals. For bone and tooth repair alone, an adult needs three quarters of a pound of lime and more than a pound of phosphorus a year. The needed quantities of these minerals, such as lime, phosphorus, potash, magnesium, etc., are small, but they are absolutely essential to health—and not found in readily assimilable form in many foods.

The person who regularly eats Donofrio's Ice Cream, however, assures himself of a proper supply of these essential minerals. Why? Because it is a pleasant and attractive form of Milk, into which Nature has put precisely the minerals in the exact proportions for the needs of the body. Milk is distinctly a lime food. It carries more lime than can be dissolved in water, and it is in a most assimilable form. Dr. H. C. Sherman, of Columbia University, found in 92 American families 33 per cent of individuals suffering from lack of phosphorus and 46 per cent from deficiency of lime. A large plate of Donofrio's Ice Cream a day will supply these necessary mineral foods.

This is the fifth of a series of advertisements on "Ice Cream in the Diet," explaining how the most pleasing of all foods can serve the health and well-being of you and yours. The sixth will appear in an early issue of this paper.
